MOST PROSPEROUS YEAR IN HISTORY

WHEN the University of Nevada opens on August 30 the indications are that it will begin its most prosperous year. Applications for admission have been received universally from the high schools of the state, and where last year there were two freshmen from a community, this year there have been applications from twelve, and in many cases the entire graduating classes from the local high schools are entering the university this fall.

The best place to educate the young men and women of a state is in the university of that state. All the more progressive states are finding this out and the tendency of the universities is to shape their courses so as to respond to the particular educational needs of their people in the highest possible degree.

This is essentially true in Nevada where our conditions are so different from what they are in all other states. The graduates of other universities, coming to Nevada, find themselves in many respects far less suited to cope with the professional, industrial and economic demands here than our own university graduates.

On the other hand, the University of Nevada is supplementing that portion or feature of its training which relates to Nevada alone with as broad and solid an education as any of the larger universities are able to give.

The University of Nevada opens on August 30th, and every young man and young woman in Nevada seeking an education, who can find the opportunity to pursue a course there should do so.

THE MONROE DOCTRINE

AS THE Monroe Doctrine, although a matter of great importance, seems not to be generally understood, a discussion of its bearing upon the welfare of the United States would appear to be wise at the present juncture.

Certain of our policies, which in the beginning were necessitated by the turbulence in Europe and our determination to resist its spread to this hemisphere, seem to have lost their meaning to us. Because of the long peace which has prevailed among the great powers and the sense of permanent security which it has given us, we have come to forget the need of preserving those safeguards—among them the Monroe Doctrine—which made possible the complete freedom from European interference which we have enjoyed.

Early in the last century the United States was in difficulty with Russia and with the Holy Alliance—Russia, Prussia and Austria. Russia had attempted to exclude foreigners from certain disputed territory in the American northwest, while the Holy Alliance had threatened to reimpose Spanish rule upon the South American colonies which, having revolted, had been recognized by our government as independent states.

Those controversies having reached a critical stage, President Monroe, in his message to congress of December 2, 1823, announced the policy, already indicated by Jefferson, which since has borne Monroe's name. Jefferson had said: "Our first and fundamental maxim should be never to entangle ourselves in the broils of Europe. Our second, never to suffer Europe to intermeddle with our Atlantic affairs."

This doctrine, which has been called a corollary of Washington's policy of neutrality in all European affairs, was reasserted in 1845 and 1848, by Polk; in 1866, when the French were compelled to withdraw from Mexico; in 1870, by Grant, with respect to San Domingo; and in 1895 by Cleveland, in the Venezuela affair.

It is a curious phenomenon that, despite the great national necessities out of which this policy sprang and the persistence with which throughout so long a period of time it has remained with us as a fixed article of faith, the Monroe Doctrine and its practical worth as a national safeguard are so little understood by us. Unfortunately, this ignorance of the subject and its disregard are not confined to the man in the street or the man on the farm, but is also as prevalent among our educated classes. This may be accounted for by the rarity and unimportance of the international crises which have come to America during the life of the present generation, because of which there has been small need of our giving any attention to matters affecting our safety.

Standing of Teams in the Big Leagues

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Brooklyn set the pace in the National league during the week just ended and is strongly pressing Philadelphia for the leadership in the senior league organization. The Superbas won six out of the seven games they played, retaining a strong hold on second place and putting themselves in a position to displace the leaders should the latter show any signs of faltering.

The Phillies, however, do not appear to be in a faltering mood. They dropped only one contest during the week, putting three to their credit and playing the steady game that has kept them at the top or near it for the greater part of the season.

The Braves are not having a very successful time in working toward the top. Last year at this state of the race they were in the full stride of their march to the pennant and the world's championship. Now they are hovering around the 500 mark with no evidence of the climbing power that they displayed in 1914.

The American league contest is an altogether different affair. Long ago it became apparent that only three teams had a chance for the pennant. The games of the past week seem

ANNOUNCEMENT

The following prices f. o. b. Detroit, effective August 2, 1915:

Ford Runabout	$390.00
Ford Touring Car	440.00
Ford Town Car	640.00

No speedometer included in this year's equipment, otherwise cars fully equipped.

There can be no assurance given against an advance in these prices at any time. We guarantee, however, that there will be no reduction in these prices prior to August 1, 1916.

Profit-Sharing with Retail Buyers

On August 1, 1914, we made the announcement that if we could make and sell at retail 300,000 Ford cars between Aug. 1, 1914, and Aug. 1, 1915, we would share profits with retail purchasers to the extent of from $40 to $60 on each car.

We have sold over 300,000 Ford cars in the time specified, and profit-sharing checks of $50 each will be distributed as rapidly as possible after August 15, 1915. Retail purchasers who have not yet mailed us their profit-sharing coupons, properly endorsed, should do so without delay. Our plan to profit-share with retail purchasers of Ford cars during 1914-15 has been most successful. We thoroughly believe in it, but, realizing the uncertainty of conditions generally makes it advisable to defer any announcement of future profit-sharing until a later date. We are, however, confident of our inability to reduce costs for several months, and therefore can offer no profit-sharing for cars delivered during August, September and October, 1915.

DO YOU USE

"DUMMY"

Webster defines the word "Dummy" as follows: "Dummy—A sham package in a shop, one that does not contain what its exterior indicates. Fictitious, or shammed; feigned."

Or, in other words, Blank Stationery, in your daily business transactions?

As applied to Business Stationery, the word "Dummy" carries with it all the odium applied by Mr. Webster. Associated with its use are the tombstones of countless business failures. It consists of a sheet of cheap paper in the shape of a bill head, a letter head, or, possibly an envelope, upon which is smeared the name of a town, together with a few blank lines upon which may be scrawled the name of the firm, person or corporation who is making a slipshod attempt to do business. Or the name may even be gobbled upon the sheet by a rubber stamp.

At all events, the use of such Stationery detracts from the quality of the stock carried if any attempt is being made to give honest, sterling goods.

Its use does not tend to leave a good impression in the mind of the party receiving it.

He is apt to associate you and your goods and your business in the same category to which your stationery properly belongs.

Think it over. Really there is but a short step at times between the road to Success and the broad highway that ends at the great big city of Failure.
